Panel Discussion: Heritage & Wellbeing

What happens when people who have been prevented from engaging with heritage gain access again? The Covid lockdown prevented people from engaging in a range of social and cultural activities that they used to be involved with, in turn when lockdown eased people regained access to such resources and such ways of expressing their interests and connections to wider society. In this talk, we share how the project ‘Places of Joy’ used the opening up period as a time that, arguably, highlighted people's awareness of heritage places as something they had missed. We share our preliminary findings of what needs and desires heritage visits may connect to based on the data collected from visitors at several heritage places during the 'opening-up' period. The panel will reflect on the increased interest in learning more about whether, and how, heritage sites contribute to wellbeing and resilience and discuss what future research is needed.

The Memory of Nature, A Heritage of Shame

How did it happen that Africa is now reliant on international entities, be it state entities or (especially) non-governmental organizations, to not only safeguard its natural heritage, but also to introduce Africans to the elephant, the rhino, the zebra, the monkey, the river, the mountain? Why is it that today, many Africans, like most Westerners, are alienated from nature? This lecture considers the heritage of shame Africans inherited from European denatured colonial education; a civilizing imperial project that marked Africans, and most peoples indigenous to conquered lands, as “savages” in need of denaturing from the bush or forests, into the “civilizing light” of the colonial city. Using a few examples of nature-based praise poetry from Southern Africa, this lecture (obliquely) considers the work of Nature-focused international non-governmental organizations and their impact, reinforcing (or advancing) Africa’s alienation from their natural landscapes, and all other life forms in those landscapes.

High Street Heritage Action Zone Project Officer

Historic England
Closing date: 24 November 2020

Historic England is seeking a Project Coordinator to support the Heritage Action Zones programmes. If you want to play a key part in the delivery of the £95 million High Streets Heritage Action Zone programme providing grants to 68 historic high streets across England, at a critical time for the future of high streets this is the role for you. The High Streets Heritage Action Zone (HAZ) programme was launched in 2019 as a 4 year programme of grants and support to revive our historic high streets. The need for this programme has intensified due to the impact of Covid-19, which has also affected the start and nature of delivery of the schemes. For further information please refer:

Rebuilding Heritage is a free support programme, funded by the National Lottery Heritage Fund, to help the heritage sector respond to the ongoing impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. It will build confidence in a time of crisis by supporting individuals and organisations to overcome immediate challenges and plan for a sustainable future.

The programme is coordinated by The Heritage Alliance and will be delivered through a partnership with Clore Leadership, Creative United, the Chartered Institute of Fundraising, and Media Trust. It is funded by the National Lottery Heritage Fund.

URL: https://rebuildingheritage.org.uk/

Rebuilding Heritage will support the heritage sector, in its broadest sense, to respond to the crisis and to transition to recovery. It will provide training, advice, and support through:

- one-to-one and group coaching and training sessions
- opportunities for knowledge sharing
- open access webinars
- online guides and case studies

Across the heritage sector many organisations are being forced to rethink how they operate, why and who for. At this point of change, as well as difficulties there are also opportunities which can be embraced. Rebuilding Heritage will bring organisations together to share best practice, to find solutions to problems, and to develop a broad collective vision of the future for the sector.
Call for sessions: 27th EAA Annual Meeting

Closing date 12 November 2020, 23:59 CET.

The 2021 AM in Kiel is conceived as a hybrid event, allowing both in-person and remote participation; the complete academic programme will be available online. In case the onsite participation becomes impossible, the event will be held in online format only. The proposal can only be submitted via online submission form available at https://submissions.eaa.org/eaa2021/

Please log in using your EAA membership credentials (EAA ID, username, password). For assistance with retrieving your credentials, please contact the EAA Secretariat at helpdesk@eaa.org (please do not create a new EAA membership account). Make sure that your personal information is up-to-date before submitting your proposal.

Sessions have to be organised by at least two people from at least two different countries. One person may participate in two sessions as a co-organiser or as main organiser and co-organiser. The maximum number of organisers is five, incl. the main organiser.

You can choose the session format that works best for you and select one of the seven AM themes. The title may have max. 20 words and the abstract min. 150 words and max. 300 words.

Call for chapters: Living (World) Heritage cities in times of a global pandemic

Closing date: 15 November 2020

The Centre for Global Heritage and Development is glad to launch a call for abstracts for the book section on ‘Living (World) Heritage cities in times of a global pandemic’. In this book section the editors want to reflect on such questions as: How will these cities and their inhabitants respond when mass tourism returns? What measures can or should now be taken while mass tourism is on pause. Its aim is to gain insight from their specific experiences in order to understand the effects of COVID-19 on tourism and heritage.

Selected abstracts will be communicated on the 1st of December.

Deadline for submission of papers will be on the 31st of January.

You can send your 150-word abstract to Mara de Groot (t.de.groot@arch.leidenuniv.nl)

They would be especially interested in hearing from you about events and opportunities. Contributions in the form of short reviews of conferences, exhibitions, publications or other events/material that you have attended/read are also welcome. Please note that advertisements for any non-HRG events, jobs, or programs do not imply endorsement of them.
